Each profile provides basic comparisons between that specific atoll and Tokelau as a whole. The profiles do not compare the atolls with one another. If you would like to know more about a topic found in the profile please refer to one of the more detailed census reports. Information on the other census reports can be found at the end of this profile.

Population count definitions

De jure usually resident population counts

These population counts include the usually resident population present in Tokelau on census night count plus usual residents who are temporarily overseas at the time of the census: including Tokelauan TPS employees based in Apia and their immediate families; and usual residents who are temporarily overseas. Data in Section 2 of this report uses this population count as its base.

Usually resident population present in Tokelau on census night count

Usually resident population present in Tokelau on Census night counts are counts of all people who usually live in Tokelau, and were present in Tokelau on census night.

These counts exclude visitors from overseas and exclude residents who are temporarily overseas on census night. Residents who are in Tokelau and were away from their usual address (i.e. on another atoll) on census night, are allocated back to the atoll where they usually live and form part of the usually resident population present in Tokelau on Census night count of that atoll.

While the other population counts will mainly provide national and atoll population counts, it is the usually resident population present in Tokelau on Census night count that will be used for most of the detailed analysis. This is because we have full information for these respondents as they have been interviewed using the standard census form. Data in Sections 4 to 6 in this report use this population as its base.
