Overview

ABSTRACT

The novel coronavirus COVID-19 pandemic is an unprecedented crisis globally. Under the slowdown in economic activity due to the protective measures enacted by governments around the world, global GDP is expected to contract by 5.2 percent, with per capita incomes in most emerging and developing countries forecast to shrink; potentially pushing many millions into poverty and deepening deprivation. In Papua New Guinea, the socio-economic impacts of these measures are compounded by geographic dispersion and isolation, weak institutions and unequal access to services for vulnerable populations. To monitor and assess the socio-economic impacts of COVID-19 in Papua New Guinea, five rounds of High Frequency Phone Survey (HFPS) have been planned and will be conducted quarterly.

Sampling

Sampling Procedure

The implementation method was random digit dialing which was administered through a computer system randomly dialing numbers from the Digicel subscriber logs and connecting to a live operator if a live respondent answered. To raise awareness and response rates, a text blast was sent to Digicel subscribers prior to the call notifying that they could potentially be contacted to participate in a survey being conducted by the World Bank.

The target sample size was 2,500 respondents. This figure was determined based on budget constraints and the need to be able to disaggregate the results at the regional level. Since limited auxiliary information was available for sample design, the high frequency phone survey targeted households in the same proportion as the 2016-2018 Demographic and Health Survey (DHS).

Overall, the achieved sample size was 3,115 because of the limited ability to target by geography with a random digit dial design.

For more information on sampling, please refer to the report provided in the External Resources.

Response Rate

A total of 3,115 household members were successfully interviewed.

Below are the completion rates by Province:

- Enga: 156%;
- Western Highlands: 141%;
- Hela: 140%;
- Jiwaka: 121%;
- Southern Highlands: 115%;
- Chimbu: 114%;
- Eastern Highlands: 112%;
- West New Britain: 149%;
- AR of Bougainville: 142%;
- East New Britain: 128%;
- Manus: 112%;
- New Ireland: 107%;
- East Sepik: 157%;
- Morobe: 119%;
- Madang: 109%;
- Sandaun (West Sepik): 96%;
- National Capital District: 164%;
- Central: 117%;
- Western (Fly): 114%;
- Milne Bay: 104%;
- Oro (Northern): 103%;
- Gulf: 59%.

Weighting

As the survey was administered by mobile phones, the respondents were a representative sample of mobile phone holders and not the overall population.

Previous literature has shown that mobile phone holders are more likely to be male, urban, wealthier and more highly educated. To make inferences at the level of the population instead of mobile phone holders, it was necessary to reweight the survey data.

The sampling weights were developed for round one of the Papua New Guinea (PNG) High Frequency Phone Survey (HFPS) in a series of steps. The weights began with weights provided from the survey firm that represented the total number of subscribers in a given province divided by the number of completed calls in that province. For re-weighting, the most recent survey was used (2016-2018 Demographic and Health Survey (DHS)). The weights were then calibrated to the DHS distribution. A second set of weights to do individual analysis was incorporated.

For more information on weighting, please refer to the "Weighting" section (p.40) of the report provided in the External Resources.

The "weight" variable in the Household dataset is called "weight" whereas that in the Person dataset is called "ind_weight".
