Overview

ABSTRACT

Information from the census provides an overall view of the people of Tokelau and the places where they live. Census information is used to plan vital public services, such as education, health, housing, and transport. It is also used to help understand how society changes over time.

Every person, household and institution present in Tokelau on Census Night, 18 October 2011, were enumerated to collect information on persons and households throughout the country, using a uniform methodology. The intent was to provide a count of all persons present within the Tokelau at that time. More specifically, the purpose of this census was to collect, process and disseminate detailed statistics on population size, composition and distribution at a small area level. The 2011 Tokelau Population and Housing Census contains data collected on HOUSEHOLDS and INSTITUTIONS: dwelling type, home ownership, household assets, access to services and energy sources; INDIVIDUALS: age, population group, language, religion, citizenship, migration, fertility, mortality and disability; and economic characteristics of individuals, including employment activities and unemployment.
